GRITIM-UPF presents its Policy Series

GRITIM-UPF Policy Series aims at disseminating outcomes of studies contributing on the making of public policies. The objective is to contribute to the research/policy nexus with a series that can be both a common ground for researchers, policy makers, stakeholders and representatives of civil society committed to the management of immigration and diversity. It will appear at least once a year.

The first number is this Manual para el diseño de políticas interculturales, edited by R. Zapata-Barrero and G. Pinyol Jiménez (shortly an English booklet will come up).

Local governments need minimum common criteria to manage the social dynamics of diversity. This Handbook defends the strategy of interculturality as a public political approach, based on a way to interpret interculturality as a positive resource, as a public cultural and a collective good. It is an approach that promotes the equitable interaction as a way to generate a cohesive common public space. This Handbook provides the reader with the conceptual and practical instruments to help (and inspire) those territories which would like to integrate interculturality as an urban project. It aims to serve as a ground for discussion to jointly work in local administrations and other government levels, for organizations and institutions, as well as for cultural, political and citizens collectives. Results are presented as an action by the Red de Ciudades Interculturales (RECI), within the Intercultural Cities framework by the Council of Europe, with the collaboration of Obra Social "La Caixa".
