

Date of publication of the job offer June, 11, 2018

Job title Research Technician

Job description

To adapt the Employment Precariousness Scale EPRES to the available information in the European Working Conditions Survey 2010 -2015 and to check its psychometric properties. To analyze the distribution of employment precariousness over European countries, its trends as well as its impact on public health.

Project and Institution that finance the contract

MINEICO: Agencia Estatal de Investigación (AEI), Fondo Europeo de Desarrollo Regional (FEDER)

Official number reference

MINEICO: CSO2016 - 79103 – R (AEI/FEDER, UE)

Information on the minimum requirements

Ideal candidates should have all of the following attributes below:

- Bachelor Degree in Statistics or Mathematics
- At least 3-years experience in data analysis and building statistical models
- Experience in trends and longitudinal studies
- Capacity in common statistical packages such as SPSS, SAS, R or STATA
- Demonstrated capacity to write scientific papers and proposals.
- Additional formation in Social Sciences will be valued

Benefits of the opening

The candidate will receive a three-months contract with a gross salary/month of 2.066€ plus Social Security costs.

Information on the application process

After analysing all the submitted resumes, Professor Joan Benach, group's director, will choose the elected candidate on June 25, 2017.

Deadline to submit applications

June, 25, 2018.

Contact Carolina.gali@upf.edu