GRITIM-UPF / IMISCOE Research Seminar

On 25th June last, the Universitat Pompeu Fabra hosted a Research Seminar on 'Democratic Representation and Diversity in Migration Societies'. Divided into three sessions, the first dealt with political representation and participation; the second with the extent to which representative political bodies reflect the multicultural character of societies, taking into account aspects of religious and ethnic representation; and the third leaned on conceptual and theoretical approaches tested through various case studies chosen to outline the various strategies used to increase the political representation of immigrants.
