

LORENZO DELGADO GOMEZ-ESCALONILLA is a Senior Researcher at the National Research Council of Spain (CSIC). Doctorate in Contemporary History at Complutense University of Madrid. Research Fellow at the Centre d'Histoire des Relations Internationales Contemporaines, Université Paris I-Sorbonne. Researcher Participant at the International Visitor Program of the United States. He is also Research Fellow at the Institute of Science and Technology Studies (University of Salamanca).

In his research he has studied the international history of the 20th century, especially relations between Spain, the United States, France and Latin America. His works have mainly analysed various issues of public diplomacy; cultural, educational and scientific transfers; international organisations; and military assistance during the Cold War.

His most recent publications, as author or editor, include: Westerly Wind. The Fulbright Program in Spain (2009), US Public Diplomacy and Democratization in Spain. Selling Democracy? (2015); La apertura internacional de España. Entre el franquismo y la democracia, 1953-1986 (2016); Ciencia en Transición. El lastre franquista ante el reto de la modernización (2019); Teaching Modernization. Spanish and Latin American Educational Reform in the Cold War (2020); El americano imposible. Estados Unidos y América Latina: entre modernización y contrainsurgencia (2023); and Time for persuasion. U.S. Public Diplomacy Strategies in Latin America during the Sixties (2024).