- Modern and contemporary studies

As of the third year, according to their interests, students must choose one of the six above-mentioned profiles. Graduation in any of these subjects is achieved as a result of having taken, out of a total of 60 optional credits (twelve subjects), a minimum of 40 credits (eight subjects) corresponding to their profile. The remaining optional credits (20) may correspond to subjects from the same profile, subjects from other profiles or the transversal subjects module. The end-of-degree project/dissertation must correspond to the chosen profile or be transversal in nature and include said profile. The optional subjects available are decided each year.

In the third or fourth year you will have to take two subjects, including optional and compulsory, in English (except: English Literature and English for Humanities).

External internships: these are optional and can be done in exchange for 5, 10, 15 or 20 credits in the third and fourth year.
